Report of Library Trustees.

TO THE CITIZENS OF NORTH HAMPTON :

During the past year seventy-one books, embracing history, travel, autobiography and fiction, have been added to our library at an expense of ninety-two dollars and ninety-two cents.

Miss Mary L. Gilman has presented the library with Harper's Monthly, as in years past.

New shelves have been added, which are already filled. This takes all the space available for shelf room, so if we are to add new books it will necessitate having a much larger room.

On an average about fifty books are taken out weekly.

Respectfully submitted,

Report of the School Board.

TO THE CITIZENS OF NORTH HAMPTON :

“Labor with what zeal we will,
Something still remains undone.
Something uncompleted still Waits the rising of the sun.”

The story of our lives is one of incompleteness. When one thing is finished, there is yet other work to do ; and because of this fact there remains an incentive to keep on working. It is progress that prevents the powers of our being from becoming inert and useless. We are constantly reaching forth to something beyond, unlocking one door after another and finding new treasures in the Palace Beautiful.

Advancement is a law of our natures. We must either advance or recede. If we are not climbing the hill, up which we have started, we are surely slipping back into the valley.

Let us look back from a little higher eminence than last year and survey the work that our schools have been doing. Our vision has broadened a little and, though we cannot take in all the details, we can pick out a few here and there.

In the Center Grammar school Miss Nettie E. Campbell has been conscientiously working for the good of her pupils. The results of her efforts may be seen in the increased interest of many in the tasks set before them and the exceptional record of attendance, especially during the Fall term. The average would be still higher were it not for one or two pupils who have no care how their continued absences affect the mass.

The school room has been made attractive, through the interest of the teacher, by several pieces of sculpture. New blackboards have been put in both school rooms at the Center and the teachers' platforms taken away.

Miss Edith M. Child, who worked so long and so successfully in the Primary school, left us much to our regret after the Spring term. Her careful training of her pupils and her thoroughness in detail has done much to smooth the path of her successor.

Miss Octavia H. Cousens, who entered upon her work in this school at the beginning of the Fall term, is laboring earnestly. The progress and good behavior of her pupils generally testify to her faithfulness and efficiency.

Miss Lillian Porter, former teacher of the East school, left us after the Spring term. She preferred teaching in the Primary grades and has secured a school of that kind. Her work here was excellent, and parents and children as well as the School Board were very loath to have her leave. The present teacher of this school, Miss Anna Northcott, comes to us highly recommended and is doing good work. Her pupils have already learned to respect her and are progressing favorably under her management. A globe and new higher grade Physiologies have been purchased for this school.

Tarbell's Geographies have been introduced in all the schools and are much appreciated. A few other books for supplementary use have been purchased as also the usual school supplies.

Both school buildings have been painted outside according to vote last Spring. By suggestion of the Trustees of Centennial Hall, the flag pole was removed from above the entrance of the Center school building and a new one erected on the common for the school flag. The mainmast was given by Mr. Joseph O. Hobbs and the top-mast by Mr. Simon O. Lamprey.

The money appropriated for a furnace to be put in the Center school building has been well expended; and the means for keeping both rooms comfortable without great expense has apparently been found.

The musical work in our schools has been progressing favorably, as will be seen by the report of the Musical Instructor, Mr. C. L. Akeley.

In order to make it convenient for the teachers to return after vacations, schools will open on the first Tuesday of each term.

The average attendance in all the schools has been unusually high this year.

Effort is being made at the present time to show the need of hiring a District Superintendent who shall have the schools of this town under his charge. A person is needed who can give his time to this work and who is fitted by training and education for it.

The School Board cannot do it, as only a small portion of their time can be used in visiting the schools.

The school year consists of thirty-seven weeks.

The number of pupils registered in each school are: Center Grammar, 24; Center Primary, 23; East School, 29; making in all who attended school in town, 76.

Of those who attend school elsewhere and whose tuition is paid by the town, there are nineteen at Hampton high school.

The following are their names:—

Chauncy Barton, James Barton, Leon Berry, Guy Hendry, Lemira Hobbs, Leon Hobbs, James Hobbs, Ethel Johnston, George Johnston, Blanche Knowles, Stanley Knowles, Marion Lane, James Leavitt, Marion Locke, Mae Moulton, Clinton Norton, Mabel Philbrook, Henry Philbrook, Content Ward.

Two attend school at Robinson Female Seminary, Exeter:—

Sadie Ethel Moore and Carrie C. Bachelder.

MUSIC.

The first essential which we try to keep in view is the cultivation and development of that musical sense which is found in every normal child; and the occasioning of a love for good music.

The second is largely technical and consists in leading the child to understand the elements of music, to read at sight, and to intelligently interpret music.

The ultimate object of the work is, as we understand it, not to bring out musicians, but to supplement the work of the regular teacher in developing in the child a well balanced intellect, which,

—as all prominent educators now realize—cannot be done if the musical sense be allowed to lie dormant.

The music lessons are, for obvious reasons, given to classes consisting of four grades, which, of course, makes it necessary to present to each grade similar work more times than is done in schools which are fully graded. This, it will be seen, precludes the possibility of covering as much ground in the eight years as would be done in a graded school; but, on the other hand, admits of more thorough work. To secure the best results in classes consisting of the fifth and eighth grades, inclusive, the text books should be changed oftener than in the graded school. An easy way to solve this problem would be to have two sets of books, and use them alternately, each two years in succession.

The work with the first division in the fall term consists essentially in teaching the diatonic scale by rote, as an air, and pitched in different keys, to the first grade pupils. Much individual work is needed here. The regular teachers have shown much interest in this work, and have given many a lesson during recess.

Many appropriate child songs are taught in the first class to supplement a series of sight reading exercises in the first nine keys.

During the second and third terms our little people learn to name the keys by looking at the signatures, to locate the letters, name, characters, etc., in connection with their singing.

Our second divisions carry the work much farther,—learning to read in all the different keys, to understand the use of accidentals, marks of expression, etc., and to write music neatly.

On the whole we feel pleased by the work done during the past year. We wish we could see more of the parents at the music lessons, and we most earnestly ask them not to forget that a lively interest shown by them will be of an incalculable value in occasioning zeal on the part of their children.

We take this opportunity to thank the teachers for their hearty co-operation in our work, the trustees and all others for their kindness and courtesy.

Most sincerely,

CARL L. AKELEY,

Supervisor of Music.
